

The Broken Wall, inc.

Issue 1

“Where it doesn’t matter your past!”

Spring 2008

We are very excited to see how God is opening doors for The Broken Wall. Some amazing things have happened over the last 6 months:

- We have become an official incorporated non-profit organization.
- Our bylaws have been filed.
- Our Board of Directors have had several meetings.
- We have launched our website at www.thebrokenwall.org.
- Contacts have been made throughout our community.

Much more has happened behind the scenes, that God has orchestrated, that was very much needed. We are so very thankful for all those who have helped us to this point.

Our Mission is to help adolescents of York County. To offer spiritual, emotional, mental, and physical help by providing programs and activities that teach about God and His unconditional love.

Our teenagers need people to look up to. They need to know that not everyone is judging them. We want to provide an environment where teens are going to want to hang out, learn skills to help make the best choices, or to get the help they so deserve. So often our teenagers are looked down on because of their age or because everyone makes them into a stereo-type. Our main goal is to make sure each person that walks through the door knows they are loved and that someone is cheering for them and wanting to help.

What's next you ask?

We are still in search of an opportunity for a building in York City to open our doors and start the many programs we will provide. After all, The Broken Wall is a place where teenagers can come to; we need a building to provide space for tutoring, counseling, holding youth services, having themed events, basketball, down-time, and a meal program.

We are still in the filing process for our tax-exemption status. There are a few more pieces of paper and forms to fill out and file with the proper governments and entities.

Trying to get the word out about The Broken Wall, inc. is hard to say the least. If you would like more information or would like our Director to come and talk to you, your church, organization, or company please contact us. Help us bring the dream to reality!
